

The marketing tech stack you need to stay competitive this year

Description

If you're still running your marketing from a color-coded spreadsheet and a half-broken Mailchimp account, it's time for a glow-up.

Today's marketing landscape moves at breakneck speed—and so do the teams dominating it. Whether you're a solo founder or managing a 15-person growth team, your marketing tech stack is either your secret weapon or your biggest bottleneck.

According to Gartner, 68% of CMOs are increasing their investments in marketing technology in 2025, prioritizing tools that support automation, personalization, and measurement.

Let's break down what a modern, competitive marketing stack looks like in 2025 and what tools top-performing brands are using to pull ahead.

If you're not automating, you're falling behind. • Natalie Cole, Growth Advisor @ FunnelFuel

1. CRM & Automation: The Non-Negotiables

Platforms like GoHighLevel, HubSpot, and ActiveCampaign do more than just store contacts. They automate follow-ups, create dynamic workflows, and provide end-to-end visibility across the funnel.

Pro tip: Use AI-based triggers (like GoHighLevel's conversational workflows) to qualify leads automatically before a human even steps in.

Must-have functionality:

- Contact and lead scoring
- Multi-channel automation (email, SMS, DMs)
- Pipeline tracking and deal stages

2. Content Creation & Scheduling

A killer content strategy needs two things: creation and consistency.

For content creation:

- Canva Pro for fast, brand-consistent visuals

- Descript â?? edit videos like a Word doc
- Jasper / ChatGPT â?? for AI-assisted scripts, blogs, and email copy

For scheduling:

- Metricool or Buffer â?? plan, post, and report from one dashboard
- Loomly â?? ideal for team collaboration and approvals

ð?§ Stat to know: Businesses that publish 16+ blog posts per month get 3.5x more traffic than those that publish 0â??4 posts (HubSpot).

3. SEO & Traffic Tools

Great content is wasted if no one finds it. Thatâ??s where a solid SEO stack pays off.

Top picks:

- SEMrush or Ahrefs â?? keyword tracking, backlink analysis, and SERP insights
- SurferSEO or Frase â?? AI-powered content optimization
- Google Search Console & GA4 â?? for visibility into whatâ??s working (and whatâ??s not) ð??? Combine SurferSEO + Jasper for AI-assisted, SEO-optimized content in half the time.

4. Funnels & Conversion Optimization

You donâ??t just want clicksâ??you want conversions.

Conversion-focused tools:

- ClickFunnels 2.0, Webflow, or Unbounce â?? create high-converting landing pages fast
- Hotjar â?? heatmaps and session recordings to spot friction
- ConvertBox or OptinMonster â?? smart popups and lead capture automation

ð??° Stat to remember: Improving your conversion rate from 1% to 2% doubles your revenueâ??without spending a penny more on traffic.

5. Social Proof & Video Marketing

People trust peopleâ??not logos. Thatâ??s why video content and user testimonials are winning.

Tools like:

- VideoAsk allows you to collect video testimonials in minutes
- CapCut allows for quick edits for TikTok, Reels, and Shorts
- SnapDownloader allows you to download TikTok videos (ethically, for review or UGC inspiration)

91% of marketers say video has helped increase brand awareness (Wyzowl) and platforms like TikTok are fueling that momentum.

That's why many marketers now need tools to download TikTok videos in hd for free either for repurposing, analysis, or showcasing UGC. While always respect copyright, smart marketers understand how to ethically curate and learn from high-performing video content.

Final Thought

You don't need 50 tools—you need the right ones. A streamlined marketing stack lets you move faster, scale smoother, and test smarter.

2025 belongs to marketers who treat their tech stack like a profit center, not just a cost. And remember: Frankensteining together random tools might work for now—but it's costing you time, money, and momentum.

Bonus: What about social proof and online presence?

Digital presence still matters, especially when scaling. Consultants often get asked about their online visibility—how active they are, how many followers they have, whether they're credible. Come up because people want real, authentic growth—not vanity metrics. The takeaway? Transparency and trust win, and automation can support that too.

Quick FAQ

Q: What's the most important marketing tech tool in 2025?

A: Your CRM—it's the engine that drives automation, sales tracking, and follow-up.

Q: How do I avoid overpaying for tools I don't need?

A: Audit your stack quarterly. Cut anything you haven't used in the past 30 days.

Q: Is AI replacing marketers?

A: No—but AI is replacing marketers who don't use AI.
